

This Shoulder

© 2023

Lyricist: Angela Williams

Daddy's buddy, mama's little man light of our lives; a superhero fan you always seem to be on the go you giggle, and it sets our hearts aglow

But remember when your swings miss
And your little head needs a rest

This shoulder, it's always here
Feel free to rest your head my dear
Leave all your worries
And let go of all your fears
On this shoulder now...
... and in the coming years

School days now; so busy learning things
Making friends; growing your own wings
Sorting through life's crazy, wild, ride
Watching you blossom, our pride is hard to hide

But remember when people are mean
And life seems to be coming apart at the seams

This shoulder, it's always here
Feel free to rest your head my dear
When your soul needs soothing Come rest, I'm always near
On this shoulder now...
... and in the coming years

At the alter; another big step today
So proud of you, not sure what to say
You've become a man of integrity to the core
So I try not to worry anymore

On the dance floor, as we glide along
My heart swells as you place your head upon

This Shoulder, it's always here
For you to rest your head my dear
Through every single season
Through all your joys and cares
You have this shoulder now and forever through years ...
whenever you need me,
This Shoulder ... it is always here